I'll Never Do It Again: And Other Broken Promises That Need the Continuous Atonement Brad Wilcox

I'll never do it again, we say and then we do it. Most of us realize that perfection is a long-term process, but when we make some of the same mistakes over and over again, it's easy to lose hope. In this talk based on key insights from his bestselling book, The Continuous Atonement, Brad Wilcox points out that the Lord's Atonement will be available as long as the perfecting process takes if we keep trying. Using the example of a priest who must repeat the sacrament prayer several times to get it right, Brother Wilcox explains that the Savior allows us as many chances as we need. Filled with personal stories and keen doctrinal insights, this message presents sublime truths about the Atonement in fresh, memorable ways. As the author urges, If at first you don't succeed even if at second or third or fourth you don't succeed don't lose hope. Find the Savior and the blessings of His continuous Atonement.
