In this second novel in the Sex University series, Louisa Bacio, chosen as the 2015 best lesbian author of the year by Author Classifieds.com, has set her tale of sexual exploration in the all-girls wing of her fictional adult education campus. Raised by an over-controlling and manipulative father, Savannah “Van” Morgan flees the East Coast for the West, seeking sanctuary with her Aunt Lucy, headmistress of San Francisco Sex University. Rather than staying at the main campus, Van enrolls in SFSU’s more nurturing “sister” school. After visiting the main campus of SFSU, Margaret “Maggie” O’Neil hangs up her police badge in search of new experiences, hoping to awaken her own dormant sexuality. With subjects such as an “Art Sex-education” class with an Italian professor who’s happy to schedule private tutoring after-hours, the school invites all sorts of sexual exploration. In the end, Van and Maggie fight to overcome the Learning Curves necessary to surmount the pressures of society and save each other.
