'Blue-Sky Thinking: Teachers' Guide' is a book for the modern teacher. It starts with 60 free lesson plans. This covers the month of September and October for the teacher, even if you are teaching six classes a week. The rest of the months have pre-prepared lessons. The teacher simply has to fill in the lesson plans in the book. This is a book designed to make the teacher's life as comfortable as possible. Nearly every lesson has a recommended internet site or audio-visual aid to augment each lesson. These were chosen with great care and will save you hundreds of hours looking for the best sites to visit. It gives invaluable tips on current teaching philosophies and explores the key areas of fluid, critical and conceptual intelligences. It also shows how to adapt your teaching methodology to help the myriad intelligence groups in your class to flourish. It will show them how patterns are a crucial part of English and it will enable them to maximise their potential in a changing school and workplace environment. All the solutions you require to the workbook are within and it will help you to prepare for the school year with the minimum of fuss. There are blank Monthly and Yearly plans to fill in if you wish to cherry-pick the lessons you are prioritising. All told, there are very few books as pro-teacher, generic and all-encompassing as this Teachers' Guide is.
